Marc Marquez Wins SpainGP of Jerez

Bologna Motorvalley Italy , 06.05.2018, 23:56 Time

USPA NEWS - As if the Spanish of Honda was not already strong enough in olre has also benefited from the incident to the three drivers more direct pursuers so they push him direct at the top of the world assault with a great advantage. A masterful race performance by Marc Marquez at the Circuito de Jerez-Angel Nieto earned him and the Repsol Honda Team a second consecutive win and the leadership in both the Rider and Constructor Classifications. This was the 63rd win of Marc's career and his 37th in MotoGP (equalling Mike Hailwood's mark in the Premier class), and a great success at a track where he has always struggled, which demonstrates the great feeling he has with his RC213V this season.

On the other hand, a turn-six race incident on lap 18 prevented Dani Pedrosa from fighting for a podium finish that was clearly within his reach. The incident also involved Jorge Lorenzo and Andrea Dovizioso. Dani escaped a heavy high-side without major injury, but he suffered a hard blow to his right hip and will therefore wait until tomorrow before deciding whether to take part in the one-day test that the Repsol Honda Team will attend at the same Jerez track.

Marc Marquez Positon 1nd- Championship: 1nd Points 70

"This win in front of these amazing fans is great! I'm very happy with the result, which is especially important at this track, because winning here is usually difficult for me. That said, I was convinced before the start that I could fight for the victory today. It was a tough weekend, but we did good work, and in the end I was able to manage the race in the best way, despite the fact that I wasn't the fastest rider out there today. The key was the rear-tyre choice; we made the decision after the warm-up to go with the medium, and that was the right move. Then I was able to take the lead at the right moment and push when I had the chance. I also had a big moment when I hit some dirt on the track. When I realized that the asphalt was covered in gravel, it was already too late. I closed the gas, but I had a huge slide! Let's say it was a bit of a "Marquez style" show! I'm happy to have taken my first win at Angel Nieto's Circuit, and to have an advantage in the Championship. We'll have a test here tomorrow, and we'll try to continue the good work. It will be a long season and we must keep our focus high."

Johann Zarco Position: 2nd - Championship: 2nd - Points: 58

"Sometimes I need some luck and today was good. Starting from third position was a great opportunity. I could be a bit faster than Pedrosa in the beginning, but he was a bit better in acceleration and then I never had enough margin to overtake him on the brake. I was not able to do it. It was difficult, but then I was in fifth position and hoped to catch this front group again, even if Marquez was going away, there was still the fight for the podium. I was always trusting, that it's possible to catch them and I was doing my race. When I saw them crashing all three together, I couldn't believe it. I told myself, keep calm, we have a big advantage, it's just seven laps to go and it's important to bring it home, being focus and enjoy. 20 points in the Championship are just awesome."

Andrea Iannone Position: 3nd- Championship 4nd Point:47

"I'm really happy about this podium, it's the second podium in a row for me and the third podium in a row for Suzuki, and for sure it's a positive moment for us and the feeling with the bike is good so I'm very happy. We worked really well and things are going in a good way, so it's important that we continue like this for the future. The only regret I have is for the tyre choice: we went to the grid with the medium, then once there we decided to go for the hard and finally this might not have been the best choice. We've been very fast the whole weekend with the medium, so maybe we could have been even more competitive with that, but in any case this is yet another lesson that we can learn from. For sure we were a bit "lucky" today with the podium, but also we did very well and I used my head because it was very easy to make a mistake today as the track was very hot and slippery."
